

The L-shaped black area is the spishäll (stove top). For cooking, one or more small fires would be built on the stove top and a trivet would hold the appropriate utensil above the fire. Some utensils might have their own feet for the same purpose. The smoke and cooking fumes would go out of the house via the chimney at the top of the white area. The black door on the right is an oven for baking. The kettles, pots, pans and trivets shown here can be found elsewhere in this dictionary.
